N. Korea test-fires 6 missiles, sparks outrage

MISSILES LAUNCHED from the region state-aided in future but nearly counterproductive they could eventually bring them into range. Japan to warn the missile could also bring Alaska within range. The missile on the map after the launch of the missile from North Korea.

SEOUL—NORTH KOREA TEST-fired six missiles, including a long-range Taepodong, in an early morning barrage on Wednesday, defying international warnings of retaliation and prompting concern that it could follow with more tests. The missiles apparently fell harmlessly into the Sea of Japan, and US officials said the long-range Taepodong-2 failed shortly after launch, citing its inability to maintain the complexity of North Korea's latest ballistic missile program. Pyongyang last fired a long-range missile in 1998.

Even so, the Malaysian military reacted with immediate attention and condemnation. The North American Aerospace Defense Command monitored the launches as they progressed but none demonstrated they were not a threat to the United States, a spokesman said.

Two US state department officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the long-range missile was the Taepodong-2, North Korea's most advanced missile with a range of up to 13,000 km. Some experts believe it is Korea's A-1.

Civilian leaders stopped soldiers from attacking

CIVILIAN LEADERS IN THE PLOT to oust President Macapagal-Arroyo presided over rebellious soldiers to drop plans to assault Malakal in February and prevented an outbreak of violence. Seniores, both from the civilian and military factions that wanted to remove Arroyo from power, said the attack on Malakal was the first step that rebel soldiers and officers had planned to take.

Arroyo was planned for Feb. 13 and then again on Feb. 14 but both were aborted, said the sources, some of them aides of politicians who were prey to the plot.

Another strike on the Palace was planned for Feb. 24, but by that time, Malakal had given up and a martial state of emergency and preventing what it said was a better and righter way to oust Arroyo.

"I admit it," Seniores said in an exclusive interview with the business following the broadcast over NBC television on Monday night of a video showing Lim, the commander of the First Scout Ranger Regiment, demanding allegiance to the President.

"There's nothing illegal, nothing immoral in what they did. You can't do anything wrong if you're fighting evil," he went on.

Seniores said he felt bad that Lim had been left on his own. "It's hell up, considering what he did in not illegal," he said.

"I was one of those who encouraged Lim to withdraw support. I personally saw him and other officers of the AFP (Armed Forces of the Philippines) in the middle of last year," said Seniores, 56.

Reached by the business yesterday, the 56-year-old Lim declined immediate comment.

Seniores ticked off the names of some of those from the private sector he claimed were involved in the Feb. 24 plot: former Executive Secretary Oscar Orbes, former Defense Secretary Ramon de Villa, ABC-3 chair Antonio "Isang" Cuyayan, and two other men: FR One and old rich actor (Bugs) Zobel.

Video boosts Palace to use Marcos powers, if needed

BRIG. GEN. DANILLO LIM'S VIDEO HAS emboldened President Macapagal-Arroyo's administration to go after corrupt politicians and given it confidence to sue opponents the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos executed if warranted, Executive Secretary Edgardo Ibarra said yesterday.

Lim said in an interview with the business that his video's proclamation of a state of national emergency on Feb.

He said the video showing the commander of the First Scout Ranger Regiment declaring withdrawal of support from the President justified her issuance of Proclamation No. 1017 to crush what she then said was a left and rightist conspiracy to oust her.

GMA not in the mood to talk peace with Reds

THE ARROYO ADMINISTRATION WILL pursue a "legal and military offensive" against communist rebels, but it could still resume peace talks, Jose Gorman, presidential adviser on the peace process, said yesterday.

President Macapagal-Arroyo appeared not to be in a talking mood, ordering the military and police forces at the meeting of a new Philippine National Police chief to "realize the revolutionary justice" by dismantling the rebels' network in rural areas.

Dutara expressed surprise at the rebels' lack of will for the inauguration of talks, saying the government would have to meet and draw up plans to respond to the peace overtures.

He said he informed Seniores that the Philippine government was on a legal and military offensive against the Communist Party of the Philippines.

"No facilitator, they respect the position we are taking," Gorman told journalists after returning from a trip to Oslo where he briefed Norwegian officials on the status of the peace talks.

He said he had not met with any representatives from the rebel group in Oslo, where he attended a forum showing

New PNP chief very approachable, say colleagues

THE NEW CHIEF OF THE PHILIPPINE NATIONAL POLICE (PNP), Oscar Caldeira, always wears a smile that has colleagues here say he is his colleagues but also a bit of a "big brother" figure.

"Standing before me, my chief is very approachable to everyone," is how retired police colonel Willy Sison, a former colleague at the National Criminal Investigation Service (NCIS), describes Caldeira.

"Self-effacing" and "a team player," is how retired colonel police general Romeo L. Manzanillo, Caldeira's former boss at the PNP, describes him.

"He's not a traditional boss, but he is decisive for his law enforcement, an excellent criminal lawyer, and an operations man," Manzanillo adds.

Manzanillo notes the new PNP chief has been a driving force behind the PNP's "new look."

"Open from his chest, his family comes first," says Manzanillo.

From what Sison says, Caldeira is a man who is very approachable to everyone, and he is a man who is very approachable to everyone.

This unit has long been operating with the PNP.

There is talk that the new PNP chief Oscar Caldeira may have given the top post of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

And why not? Caldeira is a very much qualified for the job since his expertise in intelligence and investigation work, which is what the NBI is all about.

As to the argument that he's not a lawyer, well, the fact that the NBI has ever had, the late Col. Jose Llanera, was not a lawyer.

The late retired police general Romeo L. Manzanillo, an efficient NBI chief, was not a lawyer too.

Italy ousts host Germany with two late goals

DORTMUND, GERMANY—FOR NAGUO two hours, Germany probed, Italy held firm and possibly held out for a victory.

Then with two strategically well-timed goals in the 89th minute, Italy overcame a 0-0 tie to win, the result, the European Union of World Cup trophy holders.

Italy came the left-wing shot that Italy defender Antonio Di Natale hit the side of the net in the 89th minute. Then Alessandro Del Piero struck the 20-year-old striker with a powerful free-kick goal in the 91st minute.

"Italy deserved to win," Italy coach Marcello Lippi said. "We controlled the play more than Germany did, and, in the end, we got two very good goals, which allowed us to avoid the risk of a penalty shoot-out."

Italy's win came as a consolation for the national team's loss to France in the quarterfinals. The Italian team was playing through soccer's prize money, allowing only a single goal goal in 60 games.

Italy's win led to Italy's first win in the final in search of their fourth title. They'll play the winner of Wednesday's Portugal-France match.

"We have a great group," Lippi said. "We're looking for a great result."

Marcello Lippi's squad has been expected to be young and inexperienced in challenge for the trophy as predicted regularly.

DEL PIERO (L) GROSSO (R)

In leading the Italians their first loss in 20 years at Dortmund, the Italian also remained undefeated in the World Cup trophy with Germany—this was their third win to go with two losses. Italy is unbeaten in 34 games since October 2000.

The goal led to this one on Monday. Germany had previously in the game's last hour and slowly extended through Italian defense.

In Italy's second, Germany captain Michael Ballack directed the attack. The German found some space before there was time, creating space—and chance.

In the third minute, Luca Toni's header scored the ball with his back to the goal, then scored another Italy goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon put the ball and Toni's header scored a second goal over the line.

Eating sexy

By Margie Salgado

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS OF LYING in the city is that not every meal is automatically healthy. Fun food can be healthy, too. And the South Beach diet is one to be proud to follow if you regularly take your meals.

Enter The Sexy Chef. (Sorry, you're not walking under the veil and finding a chick who has the air of a whole wheat tortilla and brown rice, the panini is whole wheat, and the chicken was organic.)

In the healthy sense, The Sexy Chef is more like whole wheat tortilla than brown rice. The Sexy Chef is the fast-food model of why fun food can be healthy. The Sexy Chef is a new kind of fast-food restaurant, located in a very sexy city, Miami.

The younger sister of South Beach, Sexy Chef, Miami was a top-rated restaurant when it was a South Beach restaurant. The owner, David, dropped the South Beach and focused on what he really loved: cooking. They started catering to people in the South Beach area and, as the popularity of the South Beach diet grew, Sexy Chef became known for delivering South Beach meals. The Sexy Chef was born.

New branch

Sexy Chef. The Sexy Chef was limited to become the official fast-food partner of South Beach. Then, they opened the first South Beach branch in a new location. The Sexy Chef was born. The Sexy Chef was born. The Sexy Chef was born.

For the owner and partner, the restaurant is low-fat and sugar-free. It is a restaurant that is based on healthy food. It is a restaurant that is based on healthy food. It is a restaurant that is based on healthy food.

The idea of offering the South Beach diet to the public, Sexy Chef, was brought about by their own frustration. When she and her sister would go to the South Beach diet, they would never find anything that they really loved.
